

Market Review: Stocks see first pullback of 2021

The stock market continued its strong showing in July and August, reaching several record highs. Strong corporate earnings reports and improving economic conditions helped bolster investor confidence, despite the surge in the Delta variant of Covid-19. The Federal Reserve (“Fed”) also kept interest rates low and continued its massive monthly bond-buying program to support the markets.

Pullbacks, which are normal during a bull market, had, until September, been both few and minimal in 2021. However, the U.S. equity markets were down across the board in September over concerns about Covid-19, the highest inflation in 30 years, supply-chain disruptions, budget issues in Washington D.C. regarding the debt ceiling and spending bills, and the impact of a potential collapse of the Chinese real estate titan Evergrande.

The S&P 500 Index gained 0.58% in the third quarter and 15.92% year-to-date. The Russell 2000 Index, which tracks stock performance of small companies, fell 4.36% during the quarter, but was still up 12.41% year-to-date. The Lipper Mid-Cap Growth Funds Index gained 0.57% in the third quarter and 9.40% in 2021. In September, we saw a reversal in market leadership with small-cap stocks outperforming large caps, value stocks outperforming growth stocks, and technology stocks underperforming as fears of inflation and higher yields increased.

“As long as the Fed remains accommodative and provides a ‘backstop’ for the markets, we will continue to be constructive and cautiously optimistic about the market.”

—Lamar Villere, CFA

Bond yields bear watching as they have risen recently amid optimism regarding the pace of the U.S. economic growth and concerns about higher inflation. Rising interest rates and yields arguably make stocks less attractive. The 10-year Treasury yield at 1.52% is now slightly higher than the average yield for the S&P 500.

Portfolio Review

The Fund declined 3.18% in the third quarter, while the Lipper Mid-Cap Growth Funds Index gained 0.57%, and the S&P 500 Index increased 0.58%. As mentioned, small stocks outperformed larger stocks in September, however, the reverse was true in July and August, overall hurting the Fund’s relative performance for the quarter. The Fund held more cash than normal during a large part of the quarter after trimming and selling some holdings as the stock market reached record levels and valuations were high, and our cash position detracted from the relative performance.

ON Semiconductor Corp., Caesars Entertainment, Inc., and Palomar Holdings, Inc. all had a strong quarter and were the top contributors to the Fund's performance. Detractors from performance included eHealth, Inc., Open Lending Corp., and Ebix, Inc.

During the quarter, we purchased Porch Group, Inc. and Freeport-McMoRan, Inc. We sold our shares in Abiomed, Inc., and trimmed our positions in Visa, Inc., Pool Corp., and ON Semiconductor Corp.

Porch Group provides software and services to more than 17,000 home services companies such as home inspectors, moving companies, real estate agencies, utility companies, and warranty companies. Through these relationships, Porch provides a moving concierge service to homebuyers, helping them save time and make better decisions. Porch has a valuable information advantage which it can use in several innovative ways.

Freeport-McMoRan is the largest public copper miner. We believe electric vehicles will see significant growth for a long time, and they use more than twice as much copper as internal combustion engine vehicles. Also, to grow out the infrastructure for the charging network, more copper is needed. We think copper is going to be a strong commodity going forward and Freeport-McMoRan is well positioned to take advantage.

3RD QUARTER TOP CONTRIBUTORS

ON Semiconductor Corp.

ON Semiconductor manufactures and sells semiconductors for various devices worldwide. ON has benefited from the global chip shortage, especially the shortage of automotive chips. The stock gained 19.6% in the third quarter. We believe that ON Semiconductor is well-positioned to benefit from the massive 5G cellular buildout over the next several years, as well as the trend to increase technology in automobiles, including growth in electric and autonomous vehicles. The 5G wireless transition should continue to lift chipmakers involved in cellular infrastructure and smartphones, and ON makes chips that handle power in wireless base stations. We are also optimistic that ON's new CEO, Hassane El-Khoury, will be able to make ON more capital efficient.

Caesars Entertainment, Inc.

Caesars is now the largest casino-entertainment company in the U.S. and one of the world's most diversified casino entertainment providers. It operates primarily under the Caesars, Harrah's, Horseshoe, and Eldorado brand names. All of Caesars' casinos have reopened since the COVID-19 crisis. Caesars' stock gained 8.2% during the quarter, continuing the sharp rally from the lows in March 2020. The management team has a proven history of quickly deleveraging after acquisitions and exceeding lofty cost reduction expectations. These tight controls on expenses should help make the company's regional casinos more profitable and the reduced marketing spend does not seem to affect demand. Profits from the slot machines have been at record-high levels. The explosive growth in U.S. sports betting is also providing momentum, and Caesars' purchase of William Hill makes it a top contender in online gaming. Municipalities are strapped for cash coming out of the pandemic and legalizing online sports gambling may be a way to bring in additional tax revenue, providing a potential opportunity for Caesars

Palomar Holdings, Inc.

Palomar is a fast-growing specialty insurer that offers protection for properties at risk from earthquake, wind, and flood. We believe that Palomar uses technology more efficiently than its competitors, and the company has a large exposure to the California earthquake market, where it uses more granular data to more accurately price policies and risk. The stock rose 7.1% in the third quarter, aided by quarterly results that exceeded expectations. The company has expanded its aggregate reinsurance protection, adding additional coverage for the company to avoid large catastrophe losses, such as those incurred from Hurricanes Delta and Zeta, and a few earthquakes in 2020.

3RD QUARTER TOP DETRACTORS

eHealth is a leading online health insurance platform that simplifies the process for consumers to compare and shop for Medicare Advantage plans. eHealth offers more than 10,000 plans from over 180 companies, including many of the nation's leading health insurance companies. The company has the opportunity to capitalize on the large number of Americans turning 65 every day and the growth in Medicare Advantage. eHealth fell 30.6% during the quarter despite reporting earnings above Wall Street earnings expectations, as investors were concerned about the "churn" rate, the number of customers that canceled their policies. eHealth raised its outlook and earnings guidance, and the company has a debt-free balance sheet and large amount of cash. We are comforted by the activist presence on the board, and expect improved performance during the Medicare enrollment period.

Open Lending Corp..

The company helps automotive lenders offer loans to traditionally underserved borrowers with near-prime credit ratings. Open Lending's primary offering pairs loan default insurance with its proprietary analytics to allow the lenders to give these car buyers more attractive rates. The company itself is not a lender, and does not provide the insurance coverage, but serves as an intermediary. The stock was down 16.3% in the third quarter, despite reporting strong results and exceeding expectations, as investors worried that automotive supply-chain issues would reduce the number of cars sold. While new car sales have slowed, over 80% of Open Lending's loan certifications during the last year have been related to used cars. We expect revenues to grow in excess of 40% per year for the next several years as Open Lending continues to partner with the car companies themselves to boost auto sales.

Ebix, Inc.

Ebix is a provider of software and e-commerce solutions and services to the insurance, finance, and healthcare industries. Ebix was down 20.4% in the third quarter as investors worried about the dire Covid-19 outbreak in India and its impact on travel. The company has built a very predictable and highly profitable business model. A big part of its revenue is from online software-based insurance exchanges which bring in revenue based on transactions. While Ebix has been a volatile stock, patient investors may be rewarded through an upcoming initial public offering (IPO) of Ebix growing EbixCash division. Ebix is expected to retain about 80% of the ownership of EbixCash, and the potentially much higher valuation of EbixCash, we believe, should reflect back positively on the valuation of Ebix.

Outlook and Strategy

The Federal Reserve has started to signal that it may retreat from some of its aggressive bond-buying, however, as long as the Fed remains accommodative and provides a “backstop” for the markets, we will continue to be constructive and cautiously optimistic about the outlook. Arguably, the biggest risk facing equity markets in the months ahead is the potential for the Fed to slow its asset purchases more sharply than expected to combat higher and more persistent inflation. Delta and other variants of Covid-19 are a concern, but both the world and investors have formulated a pandemic response. The virus is not the unknown quantity it was last year, so we believe the panic-selling we saw during the crash is less likely.

Regarding the debt ceiling, the Congress has raised or suspended the ceiling 78 times since 1960, and we don’t see this as a risk. We also believe any fallout from Evergrande in China will be short-lived as there is no contagion in the U.S. financial system. We also believe supply-chain issues are short-term bottle necks and that we will get past these issues.

With stock valuations at current levels, there is more risk in the market, so we continue to take a balanced approach to our holdings. We believe that we are in a stock picker’s market. Rather than simply investing in the “market” via passive ETFs, it is important to carefully select individual stocks and avoid following the herd.

We prefer stocks that are more correlated to the reopening of the economy as they tend to perform better in a rising rate scenario than stocks tied to another wave of the pandemic. We have generally reduced portfolio risk, will continue to focus on individual companies, and will look to take advantage of select opportunities that any pullback provides. While we can and do purchase shares in larger companies when attractive opportunities arise, we continue to focus on high-quality small- and medium-sized companies with growing profits, reasonable valuations, and strong outlooks.
